OAK

Deep within the European forests the majestic oak is one of the most common trees to view and explore, how the leather thick and characteristic leaves adorn the vivid, furrowed and crusted branches. On top of the substantial trunk with coarse deep bark the large bulbous tree crown sway with the wind. Being the most widespread tree in the entire world, whilst at the same time being strong and hard yet easy to work with, oak naturally is used for various practical purposes also in furniture design. Oak is especially good in furniture manufacturing because of the high density of the material and because the timber is very resilient.

The Angle collection is mainly made from recycled European oak produced in a carpentry workshop in Denmark, which reuse and recycle waste materials and work with circular economy as a prime base and priority in their attitude towards consumption and modern consumer behavior. In addition to this, they also employ those who have struggled in their life and need a bit more care. Every Angle product comes flat packed, which reduces the CO2 costs when shipped to countries all over the world and minimize the use of packaging.

The Angle collection has a distinct design with angled lines, meticulous details and solid sustainable material. The Angle products are an urban take on small modern furniture up to date with the sustainable philosophy and ideal of modern society.

BIRGITTE RØMER

By the big glass windows in her creative work studio and office, Head of design at Muubs, Birgitte Rømer, passionately puts her heart and soul into creating design items, which have the ability to bring authenticity and beauty into our homes. She is deeply involved in the creation of new designs; shaping objects in both mind and by hand, molding the materials with her fingers.

Especially the Angle collection, a series with angled lines, meticulous details mainly made of recycled European oak, is Birgitte Rømer very fond of. She eagerly tells about the creation of the Angle collection:

"To Muubs the stories behind our products are the essence. It is a big part of our DNA to have well-thought out products which add life to our home and become more than just consumer goods. The Angle collection merged from a great collaboration with our design intern Nicklas Lohmann, and a main focus was local manufacturing and an environmental and sustainable approach."

Birgitte Rømer's deep passion for quality materials and the raw Scandinavian design aesthetic shines through in the way she carefully selects collaborators and creates design items; choosing simplicity and meeting real needs of people, both in terms of functional design but also with an aesthetical mindset. When asked what the vision behind every designed product is, Birgitte Rømer answers with conviction in her voice: "Creating products that are made to move, touch and inspire, and celebrating the beauty of imperfection in modern living is what drives us at Muubs every single day. I believe that being surrounded by natural, changing, unique objects help us connect with our world."

To Birgitte Rømer it is important to set the mind free and let her intuition and body lead the way: "I've always strived to let my hands lead the creative process and go wherever this may take me. To create great items, you need to forget about all the restriction, just for a second, and trust the creative process." She firmly states and continues: "Of course there are a lot of steps in the making of a design and for the most part they are limiting. But when you start with a clear mind and freedom in your approach to the process, I believe you get the best starting point. And I think the Angle is a perfect example of that."

WATER HYACINTH

At riverbanks in the midst of the Indonesian land fields water hyacinth grows at fast speed. The free-floating aquatic plant originating from the sub-tropical South America is durable and flexible. Water hyacinths rise above the surface of water due to their broad, thick, ovate leaves, which can become up to one meter in height and have long, spongy and bulbous stalks. In some geographic areas the water hyacinth is considered invasive, and for this reason, needs to be harvested or in other ways kept in check to maintain proper water flow. As a sustainable material, the rapidly growing water hyacinth is continually becoming more popular, also due to the very high regeneration rate.

The Basha baskets is made from water hyacinth handwoven by local craftsmen in Indonesia, where they keep taming the natural growth of the aquatic plant. The characteristic weave and structure make the basket strong and firm and keeps its form throughout time.

NICKLAS LOHMANN

Driven and passionate about the creative process and making interior pieces, design intern at Muubs, Nicklas Lohmann, has designed items true to the natural and authentic DNA which you find throughout the Muubs collection. His creative and ingenious mindset has resulted in multiple raw designs like the Furo collection - a mouth blown glass series with an organic and unique shape that fits the natural grip of your hand.

Furo was created with a meticulous attention to the form of the glass. With the use of 3D printing, Nicklas refined the shape step by step until the right form was achieved.

Especially Furo is a collection Nicklas Lohmann is very proud of. He eagerly elaborates: "The inspiration behind the Furo collection was the floating dynamic movement of water combined with the philosophy of wabi sabi - the idea that things have value within their imperfection. To me, what makes this design great is the unpredictability of the form."

The Furo collection is made in a clear and smoked glass version, and it is not only the form itself but also the lively shadows the unique form casts when the sun shines through it, which makes this design so precious.

Nicklas Lohmann is passionate about finding great solutions to design and focuses on the user experience. He often has a functional approach in terms of production technique or materials, whilst still keeping close attention to the aesthetical value of the item. He states: "I have a analytic mindset, and when I design a new product I always have the user experience in centre. Though the production technique, and the special properties of the material is something I always include early in the process."
